LOS SANTOS

Howdy earthlings,

good old earth, our beloved home planet, is still firmly in the grip of this pandemic. What the earth's population is currently experiencing, the colonists of Jupiter's moon Io went through in the late 1990s.
Back then, too, it was science that showed the way out of the crisis. And even then it was shown that music like no other art form raises morale, increases well-being and, last but not least, strengthens the immune system.
It is therefore the duty of all space rangers who play music to boldly hit the strings and strike the keys, beat the drums and sing at the top of their lungs.
This is still a bit too dangerous in front of the partying, singing and dancing crowds, so we decided to play for you in the studio, record this concert and broadcast it as a live stream shortly afterwards, more precisely on Saturday, May 15th at 8:00 pm.

On YouTube you will get a good hour of spacey Los Santos songs from 11 years of band history. Admiral Schlör and Commander Hiss will supervise the stream and will chat with you live.
Access to it is free, but of course there is the possibility to purchase support tickets on our landing page www.los-santos.eu and thus make a contribution to raising morale, increasing well-being and strengthening the immune system.
Humanity, we are counting on you!

Your good friends from space,
Los Santos
